WEIGHT OF BOXERS FOR TONIGHT

All the boxers scheduled to fight in tonight's show at Mechanics Building were on hand at 3 o'clock at the office of the Boxing Commission. The weights follow: Tom Kirby, 171, vs. Yale Okum, 177; George Cook, 195 1/2, vs. Eddie Keady, 205; Johnny Vaspa, 117, vs. Lew Perfetti, 117 1/4; Joey Celnars, 125 1/4, vs. Chick Supps, 125 1/4. Kirby had a boil under his right arm and Jack Elliot of England was asked to step on the scale, with the understanding if the boil should prove more serious Elliott, who weighed 171, will meet Okum.

PASSENGERS ANDED FROM DISABLED LINER

An ill bedridden after the night of an attack of Wadsworth, N. Y., the 14 passengers of the 200-ton liner, Commonwealth, battered by waves and disabled, were landed at Newport at noon today.

A special train from Boston, made up of five passenger coaches and a baggage car, took the passengers aboard at Newport and whirled them to New York, many hours late.

Four of the Boston passengers who were aboard when the liner was disabled, were taken to the Commonwealth, where they were landed at Newport at noon today.

Not a hint of confusion was aboard the liner during the enforced stay at sea, the passengers declared when the boat was warped in.

Most of the passengers said they were asleep during the time the boat was disabled.

STOCK PRICES CLIMB DESPITE BRISK SALES

New York, Oct. 26 (A.P.)—Stock prices swung around again today despite a rather large volume of profit-taking.

Factors that the deficit in reserves in Saturday's clearing house statement would result in a temporary curbing of bankable funds on stock market collateral, caused some liquidation, but good buying support on a forthcoming, and there was a marked increase in outside participation.

Metiers were again bid upwards at the expense of the overvalued short interests. Chrysler's recovery. Continued on Page 3, Column 2.

SAVE-A-LIFE DRILL FOR CHILDREN

Boston Evening American
Campaign Is Spreading
Over New England

SAVE-A-LIFE
Dr. Jeremiah H. Burke, superintendent of schools in Boston, in commencing the Boston Evening American's "Save-A-Life" campaign, has an urgent appeal for the conservation of lives of adults and more especially children, has pointed out ways by which teachers can co-operate.

It is hoped that the teachers will head Dr. Burke's advice and bring more forcibly to the attention of their little pupils just what is trying to be accomplished by the Boston Evening American.

Investigators of this paper will, as far as possible, check up on safety first programs in vogue at various schools they visit, with the object of insuring how the teachers and children are accepting this most important campaign, and accept suggestions for publication in the columns of the Boston Evening American from those who are found to be really interested.

Automobile operators, Dr. Burke explains, are being persuaded to conduct their cars with greater care. Although adults cannot be taught as can the small children, still many of them are trying to "play safe" at all times and are being rewarded daily by the Boston Evening American.

SAFETY CLUBS.
The safety clubs in schools, the methods and instruments used in the instruction of the children, who are more easily taught by means of illustrations and practical exercises, are the responsibilities which rest upon the teachers by Dr. Burke.

Teachers will welcome heartily the good offices of such an influential newspaper as the Boston Evening American in its "save-a-life" work," Dr. Burke said, in declaring that he was sure that the teachers will co-operate.

Many of the schools have already begun their programs of cooperation with the Boston Evening American. Letters from children indicate that the "save-a-life" drive is known to them.

WIDE AWAKE TRIO OF SAVE-A-LIFE WINNERS

Teachers will display on their bulletin boards, clippings from the Boston Evening American, Dr. Burke believes, and is quite correct, as some of the schools have already been doing just this thing.

CAMPAIGN SPREADS.
As the Boston Evening American's campaign to decrease the number of deaths by automobile gradually spreads out all over New England, wherever this paper may be found, all those teachers, children, adults and others who believe in this good work are asked to take an active part.

From now on the names of "save-a-life" children from cities and towns near and far will be published in the Boston Evening American. Safe automobiles from States other than Massachusetts will also be rewarded.

Children who are selected, because they know how to compare, properly, from cities and towns outside of Boston WILL RECEIVE THEIR REWARD BY MAIL. THEY MUST HOWEVER, NOTIFY THE "SAVE-A-LIFE" EDITOR that they have seen their names in the paper, and state the date on which they appeared.

Boston children winners of "Save-A-Life" rewards may obtain their two-dollar bills at the office of the "Save-A-Life" Editor on the first floor of the Boston Evening American building, Winthrop square, any day except Sunday, before 5 p. m.

Put your best foot forward

There are three reasons why Thayer McNeil shoes keep their style through long, hard, wear.

First: Finest leathers and careful workmanship give our shoes strength to keep their shape

Second: A Thayer McNeil fitting preserves the original lines of the shoe during wear.

Third: Our advance knowledge of styles enables us to choose those whose popularity will be sustained. A Thayer McNeil shoe is "in style" during its full life of wear.

School Head Praises Save-A-Life Drive

The Boston American has launched a much-needed campaign for the conservation of the lives of adults and more especially of children—in order that accidents from automobiles may be reduced to a minimum. At the same time, this journal is striving to promote greater care on the part of operators of machines in nearing or passing school buildings. All teachers in our schools, at all times, are impressing upon their pupils the necessity of exercising greater care at grade crossings and at any time when the children are upon the streets, whether at play, running errands, or en route to school. Various devices are used for instructions in the schools, such as motion pictures, lectures, posters, often prepared by the pupils themselves, and bulletins from State and national safety organizations. Moreover, safety clubs have been organized by the children in several schools.

Teachers will welcome heartily the good offices of such an influential newspaper as the Boston Evening American in featuring daily safety lessons to be observed by pedestrians and operators of machines.

I am sure that teachers will co-operate heartily with the Evening American in its earnest endeavor to protect life and limb. Teachers, undoubtedly, will display upon their bulletin boards, in connection with the study of current events, the clippings from the Boston Evening American. And the children themselves will be grateful. (Signed) JOSEPH E. BURKE

A New Element Has Entered Cooking

You Are Hopelessly Handicapped Without It

In common reputation, the chances are that a score of their best dishes are prepared with Vege. Chets may not know the great good that Vege does for the human system. But they do know the unfailing appeal to the palate. They know that soup or salad, fish or fowl, and even roast beef, will have the tang if Vege be used.

What is Vege? A Vegetable essence. Highly concentrated energy that supply has a most alluring appeal to the appetite of man, woman and child. The system craves it. So you have that much of a favorable start when you set out at home to cook tempting dishes—it only Vege will remember the bit of Vege that puts new delight in the simplest sort of menu.

And Vege is good for you, too. Without it, only the dietary expert is certain to get enough Vitamin B and mineral salts.

LADIES, MEET ALABASTRINE

Of course you have noticed that we have several interesting new-comers on our page today, among them Alabastrine, for which I know you are going to find many uses.

So many letters come in to me at this season of the year asking for a remedy for chapped hands, sensitive skin, rough and red skin at the very first signs of wintry weather, and surely nothing in the world is much more aggravating.

One of the first uses you will probably find for Alabastrine will be to prevent and overcome this roughness of the hands. All that is necessary for you to do to keep your hands soft, white and pliable is to rub on Alabastrine before you dry them. This will form a milky emulsion. Wipe this off without using any more water and your hands will be protected against all chapping.

Then, too, you will find the Alabastrine way of manhandling most satisfactory. I think all of us are far more particular about our hands than we were five or six years ago, though it is not always convenient to have professional attention for them. Strong acids are often dangerous, but by using Alabastrine you will avoid burning, irregular edges, thickening of cuticle, damage to enamel, roughened finger tips, brittle nails.

The process is very simple. Simply dip a bit of wet linen in the Alabastrine, and with your thumb nail covered with the linen, gently work around the cuticle. A perfect manicure will result.

Alabastrine is excellent for the children's nails, too. Drop a few on an interesting book on "How to Have and to Hold Beauty." This book covers not only the care of the face, manicuring, etc., but has an interesting chapter on chapping and a description of the entire course of reliable products which come to us from the Beecham Laboratories.

WE WELCOME AN OLD FRIEND

Doesn't it seem good to see our good old friend, Tetley's Tea, back on the page again today? I know that there are hundreds of members of the WNAC American Women's Club who are now using and enjoying Tetley's every day of their lives but to whom Tetley's was just a name before they found it represented on their own page in the Boston Evening American and took advantage of the Tetley Tea Company's generous offer of a free sample package.

The afternoon habit seems to be growing more and more popular and it does make such a pleasant break when you are three-quarters through a busy day, even though you have only a pot of refreshing Orange Pekoe tea and a few sweet wafers or thin bread and butter sandwiches. It seems almost like a party if you get your neighbors into the habit of dropping in to share the fragrant brew with you.

You can't go wrong if you serve Tetley's, for it seems to be a universal favorite. Perhaps some of the 1,415 new members who joined at the Food Fair would like to take advantage of the Tetley Tea Company's generous offer of a sample of their Orange Pekoe to those not already acquainted with it. It is so, just drop me a line and I will see that a sample package is sent to you without charge.

You'll love it the English way

IF YOU want to enjoy marvelous tea—made in the true English way—buy a package of Tetley Tea from your grocer. You'll find an old recipe for brewing real English tea printed on the package.

For more than a hundred years Joseph Tetley and Company have been purveyors of fine teas to all London. And the Tetley Tea you buy in America is the same favorite blend of England's most exacting connoisseurs.

Try Tetley's—and brew it the English fashion! What a treat 'twill be! So fragrant and satisfying... the second you taste it, you'll understand the British love for his ever-welcome cup! Yet Tetley's costs no more than ordinary tea.

OUR GOOD FRIEND COTTAGE CHEESE

"Eat more cheese" seems to be one of the favorite slogans of modern physicians. Cottage cheese, they tell us, is one of the best foods for building tissues and supplying energy, and while we are of course glad to hear this, I believe that we are more interested in the fact that cottage cheese is an important factor in reducing diets.

There seem to be so few things in the food world that we can indulge in without the ever present danger of adding an ounce or so to our already superfluous pounds, but we can indulge in cottage cheese to our heart's content.

You see, when made from skim milk, cottage cheese has little or no fat content and so is low in calories. The most delicious cottage cheese is made with sweet skimmed milk, a little sour milk and our good friend, the junket tablet.

These are the proportions:

Add 1/2 of a cup of sour milk to one gallon of sweet skimmed milk, stirring thoroughly. Set the pan of milk in a larger pan of hot water until the temperature of the skimmed milk is raised to 75 degrees Fahrenheit, which means barely tube warm. (Take the thermometer out of the hot water and set it aside to get firm.)

Next, dissolve 1/4 of a junket tablet in one tablespoonful of cold water, stirring until every bit is dissolved. Then cover with a cloth and leave from twelve to twenty hours in an even temperature. The ordinary warm kitchen temperature is just right. At the end of this time there will be a slight wobble on top and the curd will be firm.

Next, strain the curd through a glass cloth, and wring the whey in all possible directions. Put the curd in a colander, and wash in milk. It is now ready to use in any of the many delicious ways in which it may be prepared.

For one who enjoys cheese in all kinds of salads and sandwiches, and in our favorite way of all—the milk and onion sandwich—this is a most useful and delicious food.

GOOD GINGERALE

Good gingerale is one of the best drinks for you and your family. It is a drink that is prescribed almost universally by physicians for convalescents. In many cases of sickness it is the only nourishment that can be retained. Good gingerale gives the finishing touch to luncheon, dinner or supper in summer or winter alike. It aids digestion and adds the zest and satisfaction that make everything on the table taste better.

Chelmsford is pre-eminently a good gingerale. It is prepared and bottled by experts of long experience under the most approved methods of cleanliness, where human contact is entirely eliminated. It scientifically combines wholesome fruit juices with the beneficial properties of ginger root and highly refined cane sugar, making the ideal family drink, thoroughly dependable and wholesome.

There are several other Chelmsford drinks equally desirable. Of these I particularly recommend root beer, orangeade, birch beer and lemon-and-lime.

There's a Chelmsford size for every occasion. The one-gallon bottle is for individual use. Keep an assortment of flavors on the ice for the child. For a small family and to serve when friends drop in, the two-gallon size is just right. Your guests appreciate your discriminating taste when you serve Chelmsford. The big four-gallon bottle is the economical size for family use. Serve Chelmsford with your meals.

IMPERNEL and ROSEMARY by Baroness Orczy

A Story of Love and Mystery That Bares the Heart of the Chief Plotter

PETER BLAKENEY, a carefree young man, is in love with Rosemary Fowkes, but he forgets to propose, and Jasper Tarkington wins her. Rosemary, a writer, is induced to go to Transylvania and arrange a series of articles intended to clear the air of much international unpleasantness. Instantly she finds herself in the midst of a group of plotters. Even her best friends are arrested as spies, and though her husband is a great help, he always seems to fail in his efforts. So Rosemary decides to watch and wait.

ROSEMARY's wife was reported over the telephone to have said: "I don't know what to do. I'm very much puzzled. Something has apparently happened at Kilmurphy which has greatly disturbed the beautiful Mrs. Tarkington. I'm sure that she had been prepared to pay ten thousand pounds sterling of Government money for them. And having written the articles the lady seemed first to have sent them off then to have repented."

Well, well! It was all very puzzling. Even Kervin expressed some doubt that he was, could suggest no solution. He gave up to wait and see.

"We shall see our friend Norman Ten soon," he said. "If I am not mistaken he has at least one key to the puzzle in his possession."

With a Number Ten who was himself at the time, Rosemary was not a little surprised. It was not long before she was taking in the whole of the matter.

It was a very queer case, but she was not a little surprised. It was not long before she was taking in the whole of the matter.

Mr. Dough and Mr. Dubb

Dubb Usually Gets the Worst of It

In the little pictures below, Mr. F. Oppen, whose work appears every week in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, gives you what you might call a "cross section" of America—high and low.

His two favorite characters, whom you behold in the pictures, are Messrs. Dough and Dubb.

Dough, as you can imagine, represents cash, prosperity, the top of the heap. Poor Mr. Dubb represents the other thing, LACK of prosperity, lack of cash and the BOTTOM OF THE HEAP.

This particular series by Mr. Oppen is selected because it illustrates admirably one of Dough's favorite methods.

In what the French would call four little intimites Mr. Oppen shows you how Mr. Dough works and how Mr. Dubb is WORKED.

Dough lives in MONEY, Dubb lives in HOPE. Dough gets richer as the days go by, Dubb stays as he was, or with children coming and the cost of living rising, poor Dubb finds conditions growing worse and worse.

Dough has his genial ways of "working" poor Dubb. He gives him a mean job, with a fancy title.

Dough Is Genial

Sometimes Dubb, as you see here, is "manager of the interior renovating department," which in plain English means window washer. Sometimes a somewhat more elaborate Dubb, more fancifully dressed, is called "vice-president" of a trust company, or something else, and left wondering when the vice-presidency will pay him enough to let him live comfortably.

You may say truly that this is very sad. IT IS VERY, VERY sad, indeed.

Poor little Dubb forever HOPING, forever DISAPPOINTED, knows too well that "hope deferred maketh the heart sick."

That millions of well meaning, willing, honest men should live all their lives in anxiety and on the edge of want is a reflection on our civilization, and a rebuke to the world of DOUGHS, that have more than they want, but lack imagination and decency to treat with generosity those near them, and dependent on them.

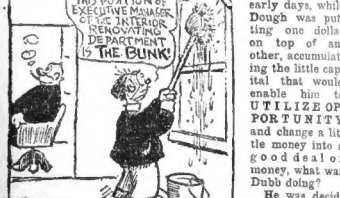

Dough Springs It

But while you despise Mr. Dough, and pity Mr. Dubb, remember that FACTS, not THEORY, rule in this world. And ask yourself, "What am I doing to make sure that I shall not drift into the Dubb class, and be one of the world's army of permanent futile HOPERS?"

These are the facts which it is well to remember if you don't want to end your life as "executive manager of the interior renovating department" in Mr. Dough's establishment, or as a sub-merged "vice-president" in some big trust company or other company, of which the real president doesn't even know that you are alive.

Not many years ago Mr. Dough and Mr. Dubb were starting out in the world, in their youth ABOUT EVEN.

Mr. Dough was by nature a little smarter and infinitely more selfish than poor Dubb. But Dubb had the AVERAGE intelligence, and if he had used it, and worked, and THOUGHT, as did Mr. Dough, poor Dubb might be now in the DOUGH class.

Dubb Goes to Work

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

Such Protection Hardly Needed

A GENERATION ago stuffed birds made valued ornaments for the "parlor" that was never opened except for funerals and when the minister called. They used to put glass covers over that kind of stuffed bird to save it from the moth.

That is the kind of a bird the American Eagle is!

What's the use of a glass case, anyway? Wouldn't any bird big enough to hurt the American Eagle smash a glass case?

It is hard to believe that poor little Countess Karolyi, seeking to visit a distinguished graduate of the United States Naval Academy and his wife, would harm either the glass case or the American Eagle.

To keep her out of the United States is to put the American Eagle in a glass case.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

SEVERAL brass cities have spent money for built-up people. Planners and their helpers should be forced to go there and take memory courses.

IT is all right for a man to have a sun room if he forgets on his own time.

BLT out of every eight hours, a plumber spends five of them going the bird after tools.

IT costs you three dollars every day to make his helper for a money wreck.

AND he helps you get back just in time to help the boss.

NO matter how big the leak may be, a plumber always quits work on the day. After five o'clock he wouldn't even help Noah.

ONE man had a leak in the boiler and had to pay a plumber five dollars an hour for keeping his finger over the hole.

AND he asked you fifty cents extra every time he changed pliers.

IT'S getting so that only rich people can afford sinks.

ONE woman claims her washbasin has cost her so much money that she keeps it in the parlor with the rest of the expensive furniture.

SHE has all the pipes running through the living room so that the plumber can be down on the sofa while he's working.

UNION plumbers are so strict about getting paid for overtime, that one fellow charged himself seven dollars the other evening for fixing his own sink.

AND when he refused to pay it to himself he went out and called a cop.

HE realized afterward how silly it was but he figured it was good to try.

A PLUMBER'S wife asked her husband to fix a leak in the hot water tank the other night and when he finished the job he took seventy-five cents out of her purse.

CHARITY may begin at home, but not with plumbers.

MANY WRITERS ARE SELF-CONSCIOUS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SPAKING of a writer of dull prose, Dr. Johnson remarked that he was "as brisk as a bee in conversation, but no sooner does he take a pen in his hand than it becomes a torpedo to him and benumbs all his faculties."

One of the great mysteries of psychology is why a brilliant conversationalist can not show equal brilliancy in writing or a great writer show an equal excellence in conversation.

It is a notable fact that some of the greatest writers have been blundering stammerers in conversation.

Oliver Goldsmith was no inept that one of his friends declared: "He writes like an angel and talks like poor pol!"

Descartes, the father of modern philosophy, was said to be ridiculous in conversation, as was also Moliere, the brilliant French dramatist, who is ranked next to Shakespeare.

Butler, the author of the famous satire, "Hudibras," made such a fool of himself one day in trying to converse that the King, Charles II, swore he was an impostor and did not write "Hudibras" at all.

Other noted writers who failed as conversationalists include Pope, Dryden, Addison, Rousseau, Buffon, Corneille, La Fontaine, Gray, who wrote the "Elegy in a Country Churchyard," and Milton, who was forced in society to maintain a dignified silence.

Yet with pens in their hands these men moved the world. The only conclusion is that some men's minds are under constraint under one condition and others under another.

In either case self-consciousness is the bugaboo that irritates away freedom to display natural brilliancy.

Self-consciousness is like the small neck of a large bottle. It resists the natural flow and what comes out is not indicative of the quantity within.

Up to a certain extent a carelessness of what others think is salutary. It aids in overcoming the tendency to be self-conscious.

It is also well to remember that while being silent in public does not indicate that a man has thoughts "too deep for utterance," neither does it indicate he has no thoughts at all.

MAKING A MYSTIC OF NATURE

By Garrett P. Serviss

Recently I attended the services at City Temple in One Hundred and Twentieth street. It is the home of the Seventh Day Adventists.

The minister had for his subject, "The second coming of Christ in this generation, which would be preceded by the darkening of the sun and moon and the falling of the stars."

In the course of his remarks he said the sun was darkened on the 17th of 1740, of the continent of North America. He claims that it wasn't an eclipse, or a heavy fog, but that the leading astronomers of that day couldn't explain it. It is clear any record of such a day, and if so, there is nothing supernatural about it—D. K.

YOUR letter deserves a specific answer, and also a general answer. There was a dark day in North America, which was especially marked in New England, on the date mentioned.

It is recorded in history and has gained celebrity on account of the courageous and philosophical conduct of a member of the Connecticut legislature, who, when the room in which the legislature were assembled was mysteriously darkened, and the windows looked out into inexplicable night, said some of the members talked in awed tones of the "day of judgment" and "the last day," arose in his place, and said that if this really was the day of judgment he was since been found doing his duty, and therefore he moved that candles be brought to enable the legislature to proceed with its business.

Showered Good Sense.

His motion was carried, showing the practical good sense of the Yankees.

The cause of this darkening, though it puzzled many at that time, has since been explained through the occurrence of similar phenomena elsewhere. It was no doubt primarily due to dense clouds of dust and smoke in the atmosphere, originating from distant volcanic eruptions and borne by lofty air currents thousands of miles from its source.

History has abundantly proved that divine commands and revelations are not communicated to man by supernatural means.

Religious belief is not helped by ignorance, misinterpretation, or laws of nature or by mystifying interpretations of the phenomena of nature. Everybody is aware that

There was a dark day in New England in 1780; there have been dark days in many places before and since.

The chronicles of all times are full of references to dark days, and showers of stars, and fearful omens, and awful earthquakes, and murderous wars—and also of false prophecies and ignorant interpretations of the laws of nature or by mystifying interpretations of the phenomena of nature. Everybody is aware that
